

"Evie was my son Honza's native English teacher for the past two years, from his start of school until the end of his second grade. These are the most important years of school, where he had to learn the most important skills - reading, writing and mathematics - and Evie was a great fit in this important time. Honza is a very active and sport-oriented boy, who loves adventure, and Evie's English time with him gave him what he needed: fantasy and comedy to captivate his imagination and interest, kindness and patience (so that he feels safe learning), and lots of great materials. She knows what toys he likes and how to use them to get him to listen, understand and speak English. It is clear that she loves her job and likes children's company very much. She also knows how to play the guitar, and has a nice singing voice. I wish her well in her future teaching job, wherever that may be."
